

Christian Clavette is an intellectual property and technology lawyer at the Samuelson-Glushko Canadian Internet Policy and Public Interest Clinic (CIPPIC) located at the University of Ottawa. His litigation practice and research focuses on intellectual property, particularly patent law and innovation policy. He is also a part-time professor at the Faculty of Law at the University of Ottawa and Université de Hearst, teaching intellectual property. Before his tenure at CIPPIC, Christian worked at Innovation Science and Economic Development Canada as a patent policy advisor within the Market Framework Policy Branch. He also clerked with the Honourable Justice George R. Locke at the Federal Court of Appeal and interned at Gowling WLG, working in IP litigation. After receiving his PhD in chemistry in 2015 under the supervision of Prof André Beauchemin, he was a lecturer at the Faculty of Science teaching the undergraduate curriculum. He then worked in the pharmaceutical industry, specializing in drug and process development before returning to the University of Ottawa to complete his JD in Law and Technology.
